

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

The author of this treatise is working on Mahatma Gandhi for around five decades and presently working as the Secretary, Gandhi Memorial Museum, Barrackpore, 700120. Earlier worked as its Director. Had been Professorial Fellow and consultant, Gandhian Studies at Jaya Prakash Institute of Social Change, Kolkata - 64. Taught at the Calcutta University and several other Universities and the Asiatic Society. Was also the first Visiting Fellow, Gandhian Studies Centre of the Calcutta University. A researcher and author, he directed empirical studies on different social problems, affecting our life and living, funded by the Central Government and have publications, in English and Bengali, including 'The Economic Thoughts of Mahatma Gandhi in his own words' that was a sale out on release. Editor, Gandhi Sambad / Gandhi News, a bi-lingual journal since 1997. For outstanding social service he has been awarded, among some others, Rotary International Award.

Name of Publication

Author

Published by

Year of Publication

No. of Pages

Price

Preface

Interpreting Mahatma Gandhi

Supriya Munshi

Gandhi Smarak Sangrahalaya, Barrackpore

2nd October, 2012

159

Rs 120.00

This book makes an attempt to interpret Mahatma Gandhi. The work briefly outlines Gandhiji's approach to Non-violence, Satyagraha, Social reforms, Education, Swadeshi and their transformation of an acquisitive, exploitive, overpowering, discriminative society to an egalitarian humane one known as Sarvodaya Society. In the book Gandhiji has been interpreted based on the views of men of letters such as Sri Aurobindo, Albert Einstein, Gurudev Rabindranath Tagore, which showed that by his social philosophy he touched every aspect of human life under the sun and that his values are relevant even at present in a society where violence, exploitation and imperialistic interests are rampant .